thinks the Alva would not have sunk.

The Alva was the largest and thest pleasure yacht owned in America. Atthough not as sierk-looking as many yachts she was remarkable for her steady sea-going qualities, and was, in fact, more like an occur liner than a private pleasure craft.

She had styteen luxurious staterooms, with every postible convenience, and was manned in a crow of fifty-live men. The is said to have cost $500,008.

The Aiva was built by Harlan & Heilingsworth, as Wilmington, bet, and was issuenced out, 14, 1886, She was christened after Mr. Vanderbile's wife, whose mailing name was Aiva Smith, by Mrs. F. A. Vranga with a bestle of American wine. She was designed by St. Clair J. There is no dispute over the fact that the Dimock cut down the Aiva as she lay at snehor, but there is much talk in marine circles over the responsibility for the activation of the Aiva, says that the Dimock's whistle blew several warning blasts, which the yacht's fog-bell promptly answered.

Capt. Charles G. Berry, of the Dimock, asserts that he heard no bell, but the Aiva's erew declare that Dimock circled completely around the yacht before striking ber. On this disputed question of signals rests the matter of damages.

The Aiva how lies in about tive fathoms of water. Her masts and funnel are expessed,

One of the Alva's crew says that the yacht's bulkheads were not closed at the time of the collision, and that, in fact, they never were closed even in crossing the Atlantic. Had this ordinary precaution been taken he

These facts were gleaned from E. A. Aronstann, a druggist, at 1904 Third avenue, who is an uncle of Modest Aronstann, and the statements whereby in consideration of any two of them agreeing to either of those and the states. The United States will make a reduction of any waited on the sidewaits in front of the Caregie offices until he heard the reports from Berkman's pistol. Then he ran away.

All these circumstances seem to point to the engagement of others with Berkman in the attempter assassination of Henry Clay Frick. The reappearance of Emma Goldman in the attempter assassination of Henry Clay Frick. The reappearance of Emma Goldman in the city saturday night precludes the possibility of her having been of the faurer-ring party.

Chief Steers has not yet received the photographic portrains of Berkman from Fittoure, nor his he been officially asked to look into with all details thereof and the result. The resolution was, at Mr. Vest's request, laid on the table.
